The very mention of Africa conjures up images of vast, wild and majestic landscapes and stirs an ancient longing deep within the hearts of most. The cradle of civilisation holds in its mystique the beauty of an era that long ago faded but will never be forgotten. Coppercraft Africa offers a means of conduit to this distant age by taking the traditional and adding a touch of modern edge.

As far back as 500BC, copper and brass jewellery has been used by Africans for self-adornment and decoration. We now offer similar styled pieces recapturing the very spirit of this majestic continent. This beautiful jewellery is hand-finished, burnished and heat-treated to create the earthy colours that create its uniqueness.

Inspired by the Ndebele culture, whose art has always played a vital role in their day-to-day-lives, Coppercraft Africa captures the allure of Ancient Africa by mixing the traditional with modern, simple yet complex, giving you a truly ethnic feel. We are proud to have extended this breath-taking range to include tableware and a candlestick collection.

Located in the picturesque White River hills in Mpumalanga, these handcrafted products allow you to take home a small piece of the mysterious African spirit.

THE COPPER AGE CURE

You take your vitamins, but do you get enough copper? Research shows you can't live without it, and it's become the latest anti-ageing skin saver.

THE ESSENTIAL MINERAL

From bracelets and rings to neck chains, copper has long been used to ward off aches and pains. But did you know that you consume copper every day and that you can't survive without it? When you lack copper you're more prone to anaemia, heart disease and arthritis. But when your copper levels are adequate, your cells are better able to produce energy and detoxify free radicals that are released in your body during normal cell metabolism and when you absorb chemicals from cigarette smoke and pollution.

Studies have shown that a lack of copper also accelerates ageing. By contrast, topically applied, copper stimulates cellular activity and production of collagen and elastin, keeping you looking younger for longer. As a result, it's increasingly being included in skincare products like the Neutrogena Visibly Firm with Active copper range.

WHAT COPPER DOES FOR YOUR HEALTH

Copper helps if you:

- have received cuts and grazes - because copper stimulates the production of collagen and helps wounds heal faster.
- are trying to fall pregnant - because copper is essential for embryonic development, helping to form blood vessels, strengthen muscles and add elasticity to skin.
- are at risk of developing arthritis - an Australian study showed three in four arthritis patients had less joint pain when they wore a copper bracelet. The bracelets actually become lighter (about 13mg less a month), because the element is absorbed through the skin.
- are at risk of heart disease - because low copper intake is linked to high cholesterol and thickening of the arteries.
- are anaemic - because copper helps your body absorb iron more easily.

COPPER AND HEALING

Copper jewellery has been used to improve health since the mineral was first discovered shortly after 8700 BC. In the form of jewellery, copper heals by reacting to your perspiration (a green colour appears on your skin and on the jewellery) and being absorbed through the skin. Copper jewellery is also used by arthritis sufferers as a way to relieve pain. Alternative healers believe that its properties help to cleanse the aura or energy field that surrounds you.

Copper's bacteria-killing properties have also been known for many years and a recent study demonstrated that pathogens like the polio virus and E. coli are inhibited by contact with copper. Copper-based pails, brass door knobs and plates (about 75 percent copper), have
